Face to Face - Abortion Providers and Women who Regret Abortions

Education: If you were a woman who deeply regretted your abortion, what would you want to ask a former abortion provider? Have you wondered how abortionists could do what they did, and what caused them to stop? Live Action has made a series of videos called “Face to Face” in which these questions are answered. All participants have gone through a healing process and have become pro-life.

One post-abortive woman asked, “Did you know it was a baby?” “Absolutely. But I. didn’t. care.” It was only after he lost a young daughter than he began to see the babies as someone’s son or daughter. One doctor talked about how he could deliver a baby in one room and then somehow flip a switch to go down the hall and do an abortion. Doctors knew about the trauma experienced by women, but ignored it. One doctor read an article comparing abortion to the Holocaust, and suddenly saw herself as a mass murderer. She realized that she was not considering the babies to be human, even though she knew they were. She also described how the abortion procedure was like an assembly line. She would come into the room where the patient was ready, do the procedure, then go on the next room. The doctors expressed their desire for forgiveness from the women.

Women recalled how devastated they were when they discovered the truth of the baby’s development. They expressed their anger that the doctor had deceived them by not telling them or allowing them to see the ultrasound.” One woman expressed how much more difficult it was to have a pill abortion, compared to her earlier surgical abortions, and how she struggled with alcoholism and suicidal thoughts. They wanted to tell other post-abortive women that there was hope, healing, and forgiveness. The first step was to admit the truth, which is very painful, but worth it to begin the process of healing. Both sides thanked the others for what they were now doing help women to choose life.

Prayer: Dear Lord, please extend your mercy to all women who are considering abortion. Help them to be informed about fetal development and the help that is available for women, as well as the terrible consequences of abortion. Please allow all women and men who are suffering from past abortions to find forgiveness and healing. Help everyone in the abortion industry to be able to remove the blinders that are preventing them from facing the truth of what they are doing.

Action: Think about what YOU can do to inform young adults, teens and their parents, or anyone, of some of the facts that so many people are not aware of. They need to know about fetal development, and the nature of abortion procedures, which is explained by former abortionists at AbortionProcedures.com. Tell them about the anguish experienced by women when they learn the truth about their babies. Relay the danger of taking abortion pills without medical supervision, and the possibility of Abortion Pill Reversal. Also express the good news that many kinds of help are available for women, starting with OptionLine.
