! Pro-Choice Pregnancy Centers ?!

Education: Pregnancy help centers have been accused of giving false information, pressuring clients to reject abortion, and being “fake clinics”. But the pro-choice movement now wants to imitate them. They apparently seek to benefit from the good reputation of pregnancy centers to draw clients to their centers with similar names and services. And so, pregnancy centers like “Just Choice” in Ohio have been founded to support clients who choose adoption or parenting as well abortion (shown first of the options), offering baby items and ultrasounds.(1) Just Choice offers “factual information, affirmative counsel, and barrier free support.” (2) Just Choice also functions as an adoption agency, welcoming LGBTQ individuals seeking to adopt. (3)

The website, provides no address or phone number for the organization, offering contact only through an online form. In addition to “pregnancy center.s” the pro-choice All-Options Talkline offers peer-based counseling given by volunteers. Support is offered to those who are pregnant or who want to talk about a past experience with abortion, adoption, parenting, infertility or pregnancy loss. (4)

The pro-choice movement is seeking to imitate the pro-life sources for help (OptionLine and pregnancy resource centers) “in the spirit of true all-options counseling.” (5) It is difficult to believe, however, that their factual information includes viewing the true image of the child in the ultrasound and the risks of serious negative physical and emotional consequences of abortion. Those who are seeking help need to be aware of the differences between pro-life and pro-choice pregnancy centers.

Prayer: Dear Father God, please help pregnant women in need of help to find a pro-life pregnancy center which will give them all the facts about their child, the risks of abortion, and the availability of adoption and help for parenting. from other agencies as well as themselves. Help them to become aware not only of any bias toward abortion present in the peer counseling of pro-choice centers, but of helpful resources that may be omitted from the referrals from those centers. And finally help them to be aware of your beautiful plan for allowing men and women to participate in the creation of new life within marriage, to provide the best environment for children to thrive and become well-functioning, gifted individuals You created them to be.
